GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

District of Columbia.

In the year 1785, five gentlemen, the principal of whom was the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed a design of building "An Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the Schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

1791

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the Northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the 15th of September, and ends on the last of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last four years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of that term.

The English department, for those who cannot devote the time to the collegiate course, will embrace all the branches of a thorough English education, mathematics and natural Philosophy, together with French, included.

The Course of the Preparatory Schools is as follows:

First Class.—Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic.

Second Class.—Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek (second term,) Geography of North America, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic.

THIRD CLASS, First Term.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek, and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe.

THIRD CLASS, Second Term.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

FOURTH CLASS, First Term.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Anthology, (Greek,) Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Mythology, Doctrine of Particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody. Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the composition of Letters and the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek, and English.

FOURTH CLASS, Second Term.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropœdia, Anthology.

In the Senior Classes the following Course is pursued:

IN POETRY, First Term.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropœdia, Theocritus.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus, and Propertius, Thucydides, Homer.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography, English, Latin, and Greek Style particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC, First Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes' Orations, Homer's Iliad.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Perseus, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors, Quintillian's Institutions of Rhetoric, Cicero's Rhetorical works, American and English History, History of Latin; Greek and English Literature. A greater, if possible, attention is paid to style in the three languages and orations are composed.

IN PHILOSOPHY.—The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. Lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily examination is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department will have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

MATHEMATICS.—All the students sufficiently advanced have an hour and a quarter every day allotted to the study of Mathematics, of which there are three classes.

In the lowest class are taught Algebra and the first books of Euclid.

In the next, Algebra, Mensuration, Plane Trigonometry, Surveying, and Geometry.

In the next, Solid Geometry, Spherical Trigonometry, Use of the Globes, Conics, and Calculus.

The students who are not sufficiently advanced to commence Algebra, are divided into three separate classes of Arithmetic, and have distinct Professors. In the first class of Arithmetic Book-keeping is taught.

There are also two classes of Caligraphy for the younger students. There are three or four Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. During the whole course great attention is paid to composition, particularly English. For the improvement of the students in public speaking, they are exercised every week before the Professors and students in declamation.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the classical department of the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the classical and mathematical course, to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy. The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, and must be well acquainted with all the above branches, to wit: Latin, Greek French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

The Italian and Spanish languages will be taught, if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

The College possesses a select Library of twenty-two thousand volumes, and is provided with an extensive philosophical apparatus, and an Astronomical Observatory, supplied with a Transit Instrument, a Meridian-Circle, and an Equatorial, &c. &c., of the first class, by which the practical use of such instruments may be easily communicated to the students.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the other immediately before the Commencement, (which will always be a day of public exercises,) towards the end of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted for the collegiate course, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness. Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce satisfactory recommendation from the Principals of such Institution. Youths addicted to chewing tobacco will not be received, unless they resolve to abandon that habit, as the use of tobacco will not be tolerated in the College.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received; of whom it is only required that they assist with propriety and decency at the public duties of religion with their companions. Were not this enforced, no proper order such as should be found in large literary institutions, could exist in the College.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, oftener than once a year, to wit: at the great vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardian.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The annual pension for Tuition, Board and Lodging, Washing and Mending linen and stockings, Medical aid and Medicine, is .	$200 00
For half-Boarders, ...	125 00
For Day Scholars, ...	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments, ...	5 00
Graduation Fees, ...	5 00

All charges must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pants and vest, in summer; gray pants and black vest, in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat; also, a silver spoon, marked with his name. These articles, if not brought by the student, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposite is required equivalent to the probable expense for clothing for six months. The term clothing is understood to comprehend shoes, caps, and any and every article of wear, none of which will be furnished by the College, unless a deposite equivalent to the probable expense be made.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged by the College, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such a manner as he thinks the occasion requires.

N. B.—It would be desirable that the students from a distance should have guardians in the vicinity who will make regular payments to the College, and receive the student in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount. All letters on business addressed to the President or Treasurer must be post-paid.

THE PHILODEMIC SOCIETY OF GEORGETOWN COLLEGE

Was organized on the 22d of February, 1830. It is essentially a debating Society, having for its object the cultivation of Eloquence, the promotion of Knowledge, and the preservation of Liberty. It consists of resident, non-resident, and honorary members. Its meetings are of two kinds, viz: The Ordinary, to be held at such times as may be prescribed by the By-Laws; and the Grand Annual, to be held on, or after the day of the Annual Commencement of Georgetown College.

The Officers of the Society are annually elected. Those for 1851 are:

Rev. DAN. LYNCH, President.
F. LANCASTER, Vice President.
W. B. FETTERMAN, Secretary.
J. C. C. HAMILTON, Corresponding Secretary.
D. A. O'BYRNE, Librarian.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,

FOR THE

ACADEMIC YEAR

1851--52.

BALTIMORE:
PRINTED BY JOHN MURPHY & CO.
No. 178 Market Street.
1852.

A. M. D. G.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

District of Columbia.

In the year 1785, five gentlemen, the principal of whom was the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed a design of building "An Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the Schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the Northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the 15th of September, and ends on the last of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of that term.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Experience has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this and afford to the tender youth committed to our care, such attention as their age requires. Their dormitory, play grounds, study hall, &c. &c., will be entirely distinct from that of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes and preside over their studies.

The Course of the Preparatory Schools is as follows :

First Class.—Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic.

Second Class.—Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek (second term,) Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic.

Third Class, First Term.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek, and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe.

Third Class, Second Term.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

Humanities, First Term.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Anthology, (Greek,) Geography of Asia and Africa. History of Greece, Mythology, Doctrine of Particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody. Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the composition of Letters and the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek, and English.

Fourth Class, Second Term.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Anthology.

In Poetry, First Term.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus, and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography, English, Latin, and Greek Style particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

In Rhetoric, First Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes' Orations, Homer's Iliad.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Perseus, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors, Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric, Cicero's Rhetorical Works, English History, History of Latin ; Greek and English Literature. A greater, if possible, attention is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed.

In Philosophy.—The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. Lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily examination is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department will have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may in a second year, apply to Natural Right which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics will embrace the fundamental principles of civil, political and international right and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History. Whosoever is not a stranger to the above extended course of Philosophy, will not hesitate to consider it essential to a scientific education, the object of which is to prepare the student's mind for any literary profession, that he may afterwards embrace. For not to speak of students of law, which evidently demands a knowledge of Natural Right, there is no station of public life, which does not require a knowledge of one's rights and duties, as a citizen. And although such a study would convey no immediate individual advantages, we cannot call in question its utility under a social point of view. The increase of our national happiness must depend greatly on the civil and political education of our youth. These and other reasons have commended the forementioned addition to our elementary course of philosophy.

Mathematics.—All the students sufficiently advanced have an hour and a quarter every day allotted to the study of Mathematics, of which there are three classes.

In the lowest class are taught Algebra and the first books of Euclid.

In the 2nd, Algebra, Mensuration, Plane Trigonometry, Surveying, and Geometry.

In the 1st, Solid Geometry, Spherical Trigonometry, Use of the Globes, Conics, and Calculus.

The students who are not sufficiently advanced to commence Algebra, are divided into three separate classes of Arithmetic, and have distinct Professors. In the first class of Arithmetic Book-keeping is taught.

There are also two classes of Caligraphy for the younger students. There are four Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. During the whole course great attention is paid to composition, particularly English.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the classical and mathematical course, to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy. The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, and must be well acquainted with all the above branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

The Italian, German and Spanish languages will be taught, if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

The College possesses a select Library of twenty-two thousand volumes, and is provided with an extensive philosophical apparatus, and an Astronomical Observatory, supplied with a Transit Instrument, a Meridian-Circle, and an Equatorial, &c. &c., of the first class, by which the practical use of such instruments may be easily communicated to the students.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the other immediately before the Commencement, towards the end of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness. Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce satisfactory recommendation from the Principals of such Institution. The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received, who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received; of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, oftener than once a year, to wit: at the great vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardian.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The annual pension for Tuition, Board and Lodging, Washing and Mending linen and stockings, Medical aid and Medicine, is.......	$200 00
For half-Boarders,...	125 00
For Day Scholars,...	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments,..............	5 00
Graduation Fees,...	5 00

All charges must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pants and vest, in summer; blue pants and black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat; also, a silver spoon and fork marked with his name. These articles, if not brought by the student, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required equivalent to the probable expense for clothing for six months. The term clothing is understood to comprehend shoes, caps, and any and every article of wear, none of which will be furnished by the College, unless a deposit equivalent to the probable expense be made.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged by the College, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he thinks the occasion requires.

N. B.—It would be desirable that the students from a distance should have guardians in the vicinity who will make regular payments to the College, and receive the student in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount. All letters on business addressed to the President or Treasurer must be post-paid.

THE PHILODEMIC SOCIETY OF GEORGETOWN COLLEGE

Was organized on the 22d of February, 1830. It is essentially a Debating Society, having for its object the cultivation of Eloquence, the promotion of knowledge, and the preservation of Liberty. It consists of resident, non-resident, and honorary members. Its meetings are of two kinds, viz: The Ordinary, to be held at such times as may be prescribed by the By-Laws; and the Grand Annual, to be held on, or after the day of the Annual Commencement of Georgetown College.

The Officers of the Society are annually elected. Those for 1852 are:

REV. DANIEL LYNCH, President.
ROBERT W. HARPER, Vice-President.
JOHN K. GLEESON, Recording Secretary.
WILLIAM M. SMITH, Corresponding Secretary.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

District of Columbia.

IN the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. JOHN CARROLL, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed a design of building "An Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of that term.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

EXPERIENCE has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this and afford the tender youth committed to our care such attention as their age requires. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, &c., &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes and preside over their studies.

The Course of Preparatory Schools is as follows:

First Class.—Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing.

Second Class.—Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing and Book-Keeping.

Third Class, First Term.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek, and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

Third Class, Second Term.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

Both Terms.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

Humanities, First Term.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Doctrine of Particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and construction of Latin verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek, and English.

Second Term.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

Both Terms.—Plane and solid Geometry, (Davies' Legendre,) and Algebra continued.

In Poetry, First Term.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Surveying.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Mensuration, and Analytical Geometry.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin, and Greek Style particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

In Rhetoric, First Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes' Orations, Homer's Iliad, Analytical Geometry continued.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Perseus, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors, Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric, Cicero's Rhetorical Works, English History, History of Latin, Greek and English Literature. A greater, if possible, attention is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend weekly lectures on the Philosophy of History.

In Philosophy—The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. The Lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of civil, political, and international right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are four Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. The Italian, German, and Spanish languages will be taught, if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with all the above branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness. Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution. The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, oftener than once a year, to wit: at the great vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardian.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The annual pension for Tuition, Board, and Lodging, Washing and Mending linen and stockings, Medical aid and Medicine, is.........	$200 00
For half-Boarders..	125 00
For Day Scholars..	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments.....................	5 00
Graduation Fees..	5 00

All charges must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposite is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require.

N. B.—It would be desirable that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount. All letters on business addressed to the President or Treasurer must be postpaid.

The College possesses a SELECT LIBRARY of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students. The Museum contains an elegant and well-arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical Observatory, sixty feet long and thirty wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms, of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a four-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneaux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a 4½-inch object-glass, and has in the room with it a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well-mounted equatorial telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a $4\frac{8}{10}$ inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable astronomical instruments, and a library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

THE PHILODEMIC SOCIETY

OF

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE

Was organized on the 22d of February, 1830. It is essentially a Debating Society, having for its object the cultivation of Eloquence, the promotion of knowledge, and the preservation of Liberty. It consists of resident, non-resident, and honorary members. Its meetings are of two kinds, viz: The Ordinary, to be held at such times as may be prescribed by the By-Laws; and the Grand Annual, to be held on or after the day of the Annual Commencement of Georgetown College.

The Officers of the Society are annually elected. Those for 1852–'53 are:

REV. DANIEL LYNCH, President.
WILLIAM M. SMITH, Vice-President.
JULES D. DE LA CROIX, Recording Secretary.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed a design of building "An Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Experience has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect, this and afford the tender youth committed to our care such attention as their age requires. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, &c., &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes and preside over their studies.

THE COURSE OF PREPARATORY SCHOOLS IS AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing.

SECOND CLASS.

Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing, and Book-Keeping.

THIRD CLASS.

First Term.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek, and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

Second Term.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

Both Terms.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

HUMANITIES.

First Term.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Doctrine of Particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and construction of Latin verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek, and English.

Second Term.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

Both Terms.—Plane and Solid Geometry, (Davies' Legendre,) and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

First Term.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Surveying.

Second Term—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Mensuration and Analytical Geometry.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin, and Greek Style particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Perseus, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors, Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric, Cicero's Rhetorical Works, English History, History of Latin, Greek and English Literature. A greater, if possible, attention is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend weekly lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. The Lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

In order to consult the interests of the students of this class and to prepare them for their future professional career, the exercises have been enlarged and varied by introducing English Dissertations on the various subjects of Philosophy, in addition to the regular discussions in Latin.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of civil, political, and international right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History.

In addition to the regular lectures on history, delivered every week, there was a course during the last year, for the senior classes, on Physiology. It is the intention of the Faculty to continue these lectures and to embrace various subjects which may prove interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are four Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. The Italian, German, and Spanish languages will be taught, if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with all the above branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness. Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution. The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the literary Societies in the College, there is a military company, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full-dress parade once a month. Their drill is that of Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, oftener than once a year, to wit: at the great vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardian.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The annual pension for Tuition, Board, and Lodging, Washing and Mending linen and stockings, Medical aid and Medicine, is........	$200 00
For half-Boarders..	125 00
For Day Scholars..	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments................	5 00
Graduation Fees..	5 00
For such students as may spend their vacations at the College there will be required an extra charge of.........................	20 00

All charges must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposite is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require.

N. B.—It would be desirable that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount. All letters on business addressed to the President or Treasurer must be postpaid.

The College possesses a Select Library of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students. The Museum contains an elegant and well-arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical Observatory, sixty feet long and thirty wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms, of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a four-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneaux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a 4½-inch object-glass, and has in the room with it a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted equatorial telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a 4 8-10 inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable astronomical instruments, and a library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

*In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

READING ROOM ASSOCIATION

OF

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

The Reading Room Association was founded October 23d, 1850. Its object is to give all the students, who may think proper to avail themselves of its advantages, the opportunity of acquiring early and accurate information upon the leading topics of the day. The principal journals published in the country are received, together with the most popular, interesting, and instructive of the foreign and domestic reviews and magazines.

The officers of the association are annually elected. Those of 1853–54, are

Rev. JOHN FORCE, President.

ACADEMIC YEAR

1854-'55.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. JOHN CARROLL, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed a design of building "An Academy at Georgetown, Potowmack River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Experience has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this, and afford the tender youth committed to our care such attention as their age requires. A large and spacious building has just been completed to be used exclusively for the accommodation of the younger students. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes, and preside over their studies.

The Course of Preparatory Schools is as follows:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic, and Writing.

SECOND CLASS.

Second Term.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

Both Terms.—Algebra.

In the SENIOR CLASSES the following course is pursued:

HUMANITIES.

First Term.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Doctrine of particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and construction of Latin verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek, and English.

Second Term.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

Both Terms.—Plane and Solid Geometry, (Davies' Legendre,) and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

First Term.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry and Surveying.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Mensuration and Analytical Geometry.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin, and Greek Style particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Persius, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors; Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric; Cicero's Rhetorical Works; English History; History of Latin; Greek and English Literature. A greater attention, if possible, is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend weekly lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. The Lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

In order to consult the interests of the students of this class and to prepare them for their future professional career, the exercises have been enlarged and varied by introducing English Dissertations on the various subjects of Philosophy, in addition to the regular discussions in Latin.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of civil, political, and international right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History.

LECTURES.

In addition to the regular lectures on history, delivered every week, there was a course, during the past year, for the senior classes, on Physiology, by Professor Benjamin F. Craig, M. D., of the Medical Department of the College.

Professor Alexander Dimitry, of Louisiana, delivered a course of fourteen lectures to the advanced students, on the Polity, Arts, and Literature of Ancient Greece.

It is the intention of the Faculty to continue such lectures, and to embrace various subjects which may prove interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are four Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. The Italian, German, and Spanish languages will be taught, if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with all the above branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness. Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution. The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the literary Societies in the College, there is a military company, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full dress parade once a month. Their drill is that of Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, except in times of vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occaston to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardian.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The pension for the scholastic year for Tuition, Board, and Lodging, Washing and Mending linen and stockings, is	$200 00
For half-Boarders	125 00
For Day Scholars	50 00
Medical Aid and Medicines	5 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments	5 00
Graduation Fees	5 00
For such students as may spend their vacations at the College, an extra charge will be made, of	20 00

All accounts must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposite is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require.

N. B.—It would be desirable that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount.

The College possesses a SELECT LIBRARY of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students. The MUSEUM contains an elegant and well-arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical OBSERVATORY, sixty feet long and thirty wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a four-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneaux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a 4½-inch object glass, and has in the room with it a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted Equatorial Telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a 4 8-10 inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable astronomical instruments, and a library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

* In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

READING-ROOM ASSOCIATION

OF

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

The Reading-Room Association was founded October 23d, 1850. Its object is to give all the students, who may think proper to avail themselves of its advantages, the opportunity of acquiring early and accurate information upon the leading topics of the day. The principal journals published in the country are received, together with the most popular, interesting, and instructive of the foreign and domestic reviews and magazines.

The Officers of the Association are annually elected. Those of 1854–'55 are:

REV. CHARLES F. KING, President.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore, formed a design of building " An Academy at Georgetown, Potowmac River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it " The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, " The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Experience has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this, and afford the tender youth committed to our care such attention as their age requires. A large and spacious building has just been completed to be used exclusively for the accommodation of the younger students. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes, and preside over their studies.

THE COURSE OF THE PREPARATORY SCHOOLS IS AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic and Writing.

SECOND CLASS.

Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing, and Book-Keeping.

THIRD CLASS.

First Term.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

Second Term—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c, &c.

Both Terms.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

HUMANIITES.

First Term.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics.) Lucian's Dialogues, Geogaphy of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Doctrine of particles (Tursellini.) Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and construction of Latin verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek and English.

Second Term.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

Both Terms.—Plane and Solid Geometry, (Davies' Legendre,) and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

First Term.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Surveying.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Mensuration, and Analytical Geometry.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography ; English, Latin and Greek Style particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

Second Term.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Persius, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

Both Terms.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors ; Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric ; Cicero's Rhetorical Works ; English History ; History of Latin ; Greek and English Literature. A greater attention, if possible, is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend weekly lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. The Lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

In order to consult the interests of the students of this class and to prepare them for their future professional career, the exercises have been enlarged and varied by introducing English Dissertations on the various subjects of Philosophy, in addition to the regular discussions in Latin.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of civil, political, and international right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the Study of Natural History.

LECTURES.

In addition to the regular lectures on history, delivered every week, there was a course, during the past year, for the senior classes, on Geology.

Professor T. W. Taverner, of Boston, delived a course of lectures to the advanced students, on Elocution.

It is the intention of the Faculty to continue such lectures, and to embrace various subjects which may prove interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are four Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. The Italian, German, and Spanish languages will be taught if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with all the above branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness.

Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution.

The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the Literary Societies in the College, there is a military company, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full dress parade once a month. Their drill is that of Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, except in times of vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardians.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The pension for the scholastic year for Tuition, Board, and Lodging, Washing and Mending linen and stockings, is	$200 00
For half-Boarders	125 00
For Day Scholars	50 00
Medical Aid and Medicines	5 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments	5 00
Graduation Fees	5 00
For such students as may spend their vacations at the College, an extra charge will be made, of	20 00

All accounts must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons aud black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may chose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require.

N. B.—It would be desirable that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount.

The College possesses a Select Library of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.*

---

* In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students.

The Museum contains an elegant and well-arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical Observatory, sixty feet long and thirty wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a four-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneaux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a 4½-inch object glass, and has in the room with it a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted Equatorial Telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a 4 8-10 inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable astronomical instruments, and a library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

J. V. D. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
JAS. HAMNER JORDAN, M. D.,
} Prosectors and Demonstrators of Anatomy.

The Session will commence on the 20th of October, and end in March following.

The Lectures will be delivered at the College buildings, No 303, F street, during the hours of the afternoon and evening. This time of lecturing has been customary in the College since its establishment, and is found to be advantageous for the student.

The object of the Medical Faculty will be to instruct the student perfectly in the elements of Medical Science, in all its departments, with its accessory branches of knowledge—not only to qualify him to enter upon the practice of Medicine, but to give him an extensive foundation, upon which he may, in after life, build up a thorough and liberal knowledge of his profession.

The extensive public libraries of the City of Washington afford to the student opportunities, which can be found in but few cities of the Union, for consulting, without cost, rare and valuable works of science and general literature.

The subject of Biennial courses of Medical Instruction, has been urged upon the attention of this, and of other Medical schools, by a committee of the American Medical Association. The Faculty feel the force of the reasons urged, and are disposed to be among the foremost in the cause of educational progress; but at present they are compelled to conform to established customs, and to give at each Session a course on every branch of Medical Science.

While doing so, however, it is their intention to make their course approximate to a Biennial one, by giving particular attention to different subjects on alternate years; and during the ensuing Session, the following, among other topics, will receive from the faculty a particularly full elucidation, viz: Operative Surgery; Organic and Physiological Chemistry, and Vegetable Materia Medica.

REQUISITES FOR GRADUATION, FEES, &c.

The candidate for the degree of Doctor of Medicine, must be twenty-one years of age, of good moral character, have applied himself for three years to the study of Medicine, and have attended two full courses of Lectures, the last one of which shall have been at this Institution; also one course of Practical Anatomy.

At the time of application, he must pay to the Dean of the Faculty the Diploma fee, also present an original Thesis on some Medical subject, and shall undergo a satisfactory examination. Should the candidate not pass, the fee and essay will be returned to him.

The fee for the full course is	$90 00
Matriculation (paid only once)	5 00
Demonstrator's ticket	10 00
Graduation	25 00

The expenses of living in Washington are as moderate as in any other city in the Union.

CATALOGUE

OFFICERS AND STUDENTS

OF

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,

FOR THE

ACADEMIC YEAR,

1856–'57.

GEORGETOWN:
PRINTED BY ALEXANDER L. SETTLE.
1857.

A. M. D. G.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore—formed a design of building "An Academy, at Georgetown, Potowmac River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Experience has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this, and afford the tender youth committed to our care such attention as their age requires. A large and spacious building has just been completed, to be used exclusively for the accommodation of the younger students. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes, and preside over their studies.

THE COURSE OF THE PREPARATORY SCHOOLS IS AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic and Writing.

SECOND CLASS.

Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing, and Book-keeping.

THIRD CLASS.

First Term.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Xenophon's Anabasis, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

Second Term.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

Both Terms.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

HUMANITIES.

FIRST TERM.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Doctrine of Particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and Construction of Latin Verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek and English.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

BOTH TERMS.—Plane and Solid Geometry, (Davies' Legendre,) and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

FIRST TERM.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry and Surveying.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Mensuration and Analytical Geometry.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin and Greek Style, particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

FIRST TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes' Orations, Homer's Illiad, Analytical Geometry continued.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Persius, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors; Quintillian's Institutions of Rhetoric; Cicero's Rhetorical Works; English History; History of Latin; Greek and English Literature.

A greater attention, if possible, is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend weekly lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. The lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

In order to consult the interests of the students of this class and to prepare them for their future professional career, the exercises have been enlarged and varied by introducing English Dissertations on the various subjects of Philosophy, in addition to the regular discussions in Latin.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may, in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of Civil, Political, and International Right, and a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History.

LECTURES.

In addition to the regular lectures on History, delivered every week, there was a course, during the past year, for the senior classes, on Geology.

Mr. F. X. Claxton delivered a series of lectures on Civil Engineering, and Professor T. W. Taverner, on Elocution, to the advanced students.

It is the intention of the Faculty to continue such lectures, and to embrace various subjects which may prove interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are six Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. In the higher classes the students are required to converse in French. The teachers are natives of France.

The Italian, German, and Spanish languages will be taught if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with the following branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness.

Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution.

The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the Literary Societies in the College, there is a military company, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full dress parade once a month. Their drill is Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, except in times of vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardians.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The pension for the scholastic year for Tuition, Board, and Lodging, Washing and Mending Linen and Stockings, is	$200 00
For Half-Boarders	125 00
For Day Scholars	50 00
Medical Aid and Medicines	5 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments	5 00
Graduation Fees	5 00
For such students as may spend their vacations at the College, an extra charge will be made, of	20 00

All accounts must be paid half-yearly, in advance. No deduction will be made from a quarter commenced.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require.

N. B. It would be desirable that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity, who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent half-yearly in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittance be made to the full amount.

The College possesses a SELECT LIBRARY of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students.

The MUSEUM contains an elegant and well-arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical OBSERVATORY, sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms, of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a 4-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a $4\frac{1}{2}$-inch object-glass, and has in the room with it a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted Equatorial Telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a $4\frac{8}{10}$-inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable Astronomical Instruments, and a Library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

---

* In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

MEDICAL DEPAR

WASHINGTON CITY,

(Corner of F and 12th streets.)

SESSION 1857-'8.

FACULTY OF MEDICINE.

NOBLE YOUNG, M. D.,
Professor of Principles and Practice of Medicine, (and President of the Faculty.)

CHAS. H. LIEBERMAN, M. D.,
Professor of Surgery.

JOHNSON ELIOT, M. D.,
Professor of Anatomy.

JAMES E. MORGAN, M. D.,
Professor of Medical Jurisprudence and Hygiene.

J. M. SNYDER, M. D.,
Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children.

BENJAMIN F. CRAIG, M. D.,

GEORGE C. SCHAEFFER, M. D.,
Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

FLODOARDO HOWARD, M. D.,
Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children.

JOSEPH S. SMITH, M. D.,
Demonstrator of Anatomy.

The Session will commence on the 19th of October, and end in March following.

The Lectures will be delivered at the College buildings, No. 303 F street, during the hours of the afternoon and evening. This time of lecturing has been customary in the College since its establishment, and is found to be advantageous for the student.

The object of the Medical Faculty will be to instruct the student perfectly in the elements of Medical Science, in all its departments, with its accessory branches of knowledge—not only to qualify him to enter upon the practice of Medicine, but to give him an extensive foundation upon which he may, in after life, build up a thorough and liberal knowledge of his profession.

The extensive public libraries of the city of Washington afford to the student opportunities which can be found in few cities of the Union for consulting, without cost, rare and valuable works of science and general literature.

The Faculty deem it their duty to call the attention of students and preceptors to the fact, that a neglect of the advantage of office tuition is one of the great defects of medical education at the present day. It has always been the opinion of the medical profession in this country and elsewhere, that in the office of an intelligent practitioner, means of instruction exist, for which no other system offers a substitute.

To extend these advantages, the Faculty subject the students to regular examinations in their respective offices, during the recess between March and October; giving them at the same time the advantage of private clinics, without any extra charge. These have been found from experience to ensure so much more information to each student than public ones, that the Faculty have determined to spare no effort to enlarge their resources, so as to bring each student into familiar contact with the subjects of disease.

Georgetown College, D. C.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. John Carroll, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore—formed a design of building "An Academy, at Georgetown, Potowmac River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course of studies occupies, generally, seven years, inclusive of the preparatory classes, which last three years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

Preparatory Department.

Experience has proved to us the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this, and afford the tender youth committed to our care such attention as their age requires. A large and spacious building has just been completed, to be used exclusively for the accommodation of the younger students. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the others, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes, and preside over their studies.

THE COURSE OF THE PREPARATORY SCHOOLS IS AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, or Cicero's Select Letters, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic and Writing.

SECOND CLASS.

Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing and Book-keeping.

THIRD CLASS.

FIRST TERM.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Xenophon's Anabasis, Ancient History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

SECOND TERM.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

BOTH TERMS.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

HUMANITIES.

FIRST TERM.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Doctrine of Particles, (Tursellini,) Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and Construction of Latin Verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek and English.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

BOTH TERMS.—Plane and Solid Geometry, (Davies' Legendre,) and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

FIRST TERM.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry and Surveying.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Mensuration and Analytical Geometry.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin and Greek Style, particularly attended to, in prose and poetry, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

FIRST TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes' Orations, Homer's Illiad, Analytical Geometry continued.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Persius, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors; Quintillian's Institutions of Rhetoric; Cicero's Rhetorical Works; English History; History of Latin; Greek and English Literature.

A greater attention, if possible, is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend weekly lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics. The lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, and a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English. Once every month the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement.

In order to consult the interests of the students of this class and to prepare them for their future professional career, the exercises have been enlarged and varied by introducing English Dissertations on the various subjects of Philosophy, in addition to the regular discussions in Latin.

Students, who desire to pursue further the Philosophical course, may, in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of Civil, Political, and International Right, with a critical history of Philosophy. Natural Philosophy will be continued and embellished by the study of Natural History.

LECTURES.

In addition to the regular lectures on History, delivered every week, there were occasional lectures on various subjects, during the past year, and a very instructive course of lectures and readings by Mr. George Vandenhoff. The students of the senior classes have the advantage of attending the lectures of the Smithsonian Institution, accompanied by one of their Professors. They may also enjoy, on days of recreation, the privilege of hearing the debates in Congress or the pleadings of the Supreme Court, whenever the subjects may be interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are six Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. In the higher classes the students are required to converse in French. The teachers are natives of France.

The Italian, German, and Spanish Languages will be taught if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with the following branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French, and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of the class left.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a great source of idleness.

Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution.

The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the Literary Societies in the College, there is a military company, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full dress parade once a month. Their drill is Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, except in times of vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardians.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by the President.

EXPENSES.

The pension for the scholastic year for Tuition, Board, Lodging, Washing, and Mending of Linen, is	$200 00
$100 invariably in advance.
Medical Aid and Medicines	5 00
For Half-Boarders	125 00
For Day-Scholars	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments	5 00
Graduation Fees	5 00
For those students who may spend the Vacations at the College, an extra charge will be made, of	20 00

All accounts must be paid half-yearly in advance. Students may enter at any time during the session. Should a student leave before the expiration of a quarter, no deduction will be made, except in cases of sickness or dismission.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. No student is to visit out of the College without his uniform. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow for their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require. No advance will be made beyond the deposit.

N. B. It would be desirable that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity, who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

1857-8

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent half-yearly in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittance be made to the full amount.

The College possesses a SELECT LIBRARY of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students.

The MUSEUM contains an elegant and well-arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical OBSERVATORY, sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, divided from east to west in three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms, of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a 4-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a $4\frac{1}{2}$-inch object-glass, and has in the room with it a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted Equatorial Telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a $4\frac{8}{10}$-inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable Astronomical Instruments, and a Library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

---

* In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

J. M. SNYDER, M. D.,
Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children.

THOMAS ANTISELL, M. D.,
Professor of Medical Chemistry, Toxicology, and Physiology.

J. E. WILLETT, M. D.,
Demonstrator of Anatomy.

FLODOARDO HOWARD, M. D.,
Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics.

The Session will commence on the 19th of October, and end in March following.

The Lectures will be delivered at the College buildings, No. 303 F street, during the hours of the afternoon and evening. This time of lecturing has been customary in the College since its establishment, and is found to be advantageous for the student.

The object of the Medical Faculty will be to instruct the student perfectly in the elements of Medical Science, in all its departments, with its accessory branches of knowledge, not only to qualify him to enter upon the practice of Medicine, but to give him an extensive foundation upon which he may, in after life, build up a thorough and liberal knowledge of his profession.

The extensive public libraries of the city of Washington afford to the student opportunities which can be found in few cities of the Union for consulting, without cost, rare and valuable works of science and general literature.

The Faculty deem it their duty to call the attention of students and preceptors to the fact, that a neglect of the advantage of office tuition is one of the great defects of medical education at the present day. It has always been the opinion of the medical profession in this country and elsewhere, that in the office of an intelligent practitioner, means of instruction exist, for which no other system offers a substitute.

To extend these advantages, the Faculty subject the students to regular examinations in their respective offices, during the recess between March and October; giving them at the same time, the advantage of private clinics, without any extra charge. These have been found from experience to ensure so much more information to each student than public ones, that the Faculty have determined to spare no effort to enlarge their resources, so as to bring each student into familiar contact with the subjects of disease.

Requisites for Graduation, Fees, &c.

The candidate for the degree of Doctor of Medicine must be twenty-one years of age, of good moral character, have applied himself for three years to the study of Medicine, and have attended two full courses of Lectures, the last one of which shall have been at this Institution; also one course of Practical Anatomy.

At the time of application he must pay to the Dean of the Faculty the diploma fee, also present an original thesis on some medical subject, and shall undergo a satisfactory examination. Should the candidate not pass, the fee and essay will be returned to him.

The fee for the full course is	$90 00
Matriculation (paid only once)	5 00
Demonstrator's ticket	10 00
Graduation	25 00

The expenses of living in Washington are as moderate as in any other city in the Union.

Georgetown College,

District of Columbia,

FOR THE

Academic Year 1858-9.

BALTIMORE . . . PRINTED BY JOHN MURPHY & Co.
MARBLE BUILDING, 182 BALTIMORE STREET.
1859.

A.M.D.G.

Georgetown College, D. C.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. JOHN CARROLL, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore—formed a design of establishing "An Academy, at Georgetown, Potowmac River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 we find it styled "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course, including the preparatory classes, which last three years, occupies seven years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

Preparatory Department.

Experience has proved the necessity of separating the very young students from the seniors. Arrangements have accordingly been made to effect this, and to afford the tender youth committed to their charge such attention as their age requires. A large and spacious building has been exclusively devoted to their accommodation. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., &c., are entirely distinct, and officers are especially assigned to attend them in their pastimes, and preside over their studies.

THE COURSE OF THE PREPARATORY SCHOOLS IS AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic and Writing, Greek Grammar.

SECOND CLASS.

Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing and Book-keeping.

THIRD CLASS.

FIRST TERM.—Curtius, Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

SECOND TERM.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

BOTH TERMS.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

IN HUMANITIES.

FIRST TERM.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Alvarez's Prosody, Scanning and Construction of Latin Verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the Formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek and English.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

BOTH TERMS.—Sestini's Plane and Solid Geometry and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

FIRST TERM.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Sestini's Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, Davies's Surveying.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Sestini's Analytical Geometry.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin and Greek Style, in prose and poetry particularly attended to, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

FIRST TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes's Orations, Homer's Iliad, Analytical Geometry continued.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Persius, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors; Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric; Cicero's Rhetorical Works; English History; History of Latin, Greek and English Literature.

Greater attention, if possible, is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics and Ethics. The lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture, and from time to time the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English.

The better to prepare the students of this class for their future career, it has been deemed advisable to diversify the regular discussions in Latin by the introduction of English dissertations on the various topics of Philosophy.

Students, who desire to pursue an ampler course, may, in a second year, apply to Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of Civil, Political and International Right, with a critical history of Philosophy. The study of Natural Philosophy will be continued.

LECTURES.

In addition to the regular lectures on History, a course was delivered by Alexander Dimitry, LL. D., on Roman History. The students of the senior classes have the advantage of attending the lectures of the Smithsonian Institution, accompanied by one of their Professors. They may also enjoy, on days of recreation, the privilege of hearing the debates in Congress or the pleadings of the Supreme Court, whenever the subjects may be interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are six Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. In the higher classes the students will be expected to converse in French.

The Italian, German, and Spanish Languages will be taught if required; but together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with the following branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of his former class.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a source of great inconvenience.

Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution.

The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the Literary Societies in the College, there is a Military Company, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full dress parade once a month. Their drill is Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, except in times of vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardians.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by an officer of the College.

EXPENSES.

The pension for the scholastic year for Tuition, Board, Lodging, Washing, and Mending of Linen, is	$200 00
$100 invariably in advance.
Medical Aid and Medicines	5 00
For Half-Boarders	125 00
For Day-Scholars	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments	5 00
Graduation Fees	5 00
For those students who may spend the Vacations at the College, an extra charge will be made, of	20 00

All accounts must be paid half-yearly in advance. Students may enter at any time during the session. Should a student leave before the expiration of a quarter, no deduction will be made, except in cases of sickness or dismission.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow to their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require. No advance will be made beyond the deposit.

N. B. It is required that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity, who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent half-yearly in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittance be made to the full amount.

The College possesses a SELECT LIBRARY of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students.

The MUSEUM contains an elegant and well arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical OBSERVATORY, sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms, of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a 4-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a 4$\frac{1}{2}$-inch object-glass. There is in the same room a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted Equatorial Telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a 4$\frac{8}{10}$-inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable Astronomical Instruments, and a Library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

---

* In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

J. E. WILLETT, M. D.,
Demonstrator of Anatomy.

FLODOARDO HOWARD, M. D.,
Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics.

The Session will commence on the 24th of October, and end in March following.

The Lectures will be delivered at the College buildings, No. 303 F street, during the hours of the afternoon and evening. This time of lecturing has been customary in the College since its establishment, and is found to be advantageous for the student.

The object of the Medical Faculty will be to instruct the student perfectly in the elements of Medical Science, in all its departments, with its accessory branches of knowledge, not only to qualify him to enter upon the practice of Medicine, but to give him an extensive foundation upon which he may, in after life, build up a thorough and liberal knowledge of his profession.

The extensive public libraries of the city of Washington afford to the student opportunities which can be found in few cities of the Union for consulting, without cost, rare and valuable works of science and general literature.

The Faculty deem it their duty to call the attention of students and preceptors to the fact, that a neglect of the advantage of office tuition is one of the great defects of medical education at the present day. It has always been the opinion of the medical profession in this country and elsewhere, that in the office of an intelligent practitioner, means of instruction exist, for which no other system offers a substitute.

To extend these advantages, the Faculty subject the students to regular examinations in their respective offices, during the recess between March and October; giving them at the same time, the advantage of private clinics, without any extra charge. These have been found from experience to ensure so much more information to each student than public ones, that the Faculty have determined to spare no effort to enlarge their resources, so as to bring each student into familiar contact with the subjects of disease.

REQUISITES FOR GRADUATION, FEES, &c.

The candidate for the degree of Doctor of Medicine must be twenty-one years of age, of good moral character, have applied himself for three years to the study of Medicine, and have attended two full courses of Lectures, the last one of which shall have been at this Institution; also one course of Practical Anatomy.

At the time of application he must pay to the Dean of the Faculty the diploma fee, also present an original thesis on some medical subject, and shall undergo a satisfactory examination. Should the candidate not pass, the fee and essay will be returned to him.

The fee for the full course is	$90 00
Matriculation (paid only once)	5 00
Demonstrator's ticket	10 00
Graduation	25 00

The expenses of living in Washington are as moderate as in any other city in the Union.

Georgetown College, D. C.

In the year 1785, several gentlemen—the principal of whom was the Rev. JOHN CARROLL, afterwards the first Archbishop of Baltimore—formed the design of establishing "An Academy, at Georgetown, Potowmac River, Maryland." In 1789 the first house was built; in 1792 the schools commenced, and in 1798 it was designated as "The College of Georgetown, Potomac River, State of Maryland." In May, 1815, Congress raised it to the rank of an University.

In May, 1851, "The Medical Department of Georgetown College" was opened in Washington City, D. C.

The College is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy.

The academic year commences on the first Monday of September, and ends about the middle of July. The collegiate course, including the preparatory classes, which last three years, occupies seven years, unless the proficiency of the student authorize an abbreviation of the term.

Preparatory and Junior Departments.

Experience having proved the necessity of separating the younger from the older students, a large building has been erected for the accommodation of the former.

Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., &c., are now entirely distinct, and officers are especially assigned to attend them in their pastimes, and preside over their studies; they will thus receive that more careful attention their tender age requires.

COURSE OF STUDIES IS AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST CLASS.

Latin Grammar, Viri Romæ, Geography, English Grammar, History of the Bible, Latin and English Exercises, Arithmetic and Writing, Greek Grammar.

SECOND CLASS.

Nepos' Lives, Cicero's Letters, Fables of Phædrus, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Æsop's Fables in Greek, Geography of North America, History of the United States, Latin and Greek Exercises, Arithmetic, Writing and Book-keeping.

THIRD CLASS.

FIRST TERM.—Curtius,Ovid's Metamorphoses, Græca Minora, History of the Republics of Athens and Sparta, Greek Grammar, Latin Grammar, English Grammar, Latin, Greek and English Exercises, Geography of South America and Europe, Mythology.

SECOND TERM.—Cæsar, Ovid's Tristium, &c., &c.

BOTH TERMS.—Algebra.

IN THE SENIOR CLASSES THE FOLLOWING COURSE IS PURSUED:

IN HUMANITIES.

FIRST TERM.—Sallust, Virgil, (Eclogues and Georgics,) Lucian's Dialogues, Geography of Asia and Africa, History of Greece, Alvarez' Prosody, Scanning and Construction of Latin Verse, Latin Grammar, Greek Grammar, Rules for the Formation of Style, Exercises in Latin, Greek and English.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Minor Works, Virgil's Æneid, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Theocritus.

BOTH TERMS.—Plane and Solid Geometry, and Algebra continued.

IN POETRY.

FIRST TERM.—Livy, Virgil's Æneid, Horace's Art of Poetry, Xenophon's Cyropædia, Homer, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, Davies' Surveying.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Odes, Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius, Thucydides, and Homer, Analytical Geometry.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric and Poetry, Greek Dialects and Prosody, History of Rome, Ancient Geography; English, Latin and Greek Style, in prose and poetry, particularly attended to, and specimens from approved authors committed to memory.

IN RHETORIC.

FIRST TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes' Orations, Homer's Iliad, Analytical Geometry continued.

SECOND TERM.—Cicero's Orations, Juvenal and Persius, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Sophocles, Calculus.

BOTH TERMS.—Precepts of Rhetoric, with criticisms on the most celebrated authors; Quintilian's Institutions of Rhetoric; Cicero's Rhetorical Works; English History; History of Latin, Greek and English Literature.

Greater attention, if possible, is paid to style in the three languages, and orations are composed. The students of this and of the graduating class attend lectures on the Philosophy of History.

IN PHILOSOPHY.

The students learn Logic, Metaphysics and Ethics. The lectures on these branches are delivered in Latin, a daily discussion (in Latin) is held on the lecture, and from time to time the students of this department have public exercises before the Faculty, to test their improvement. In Natural Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry, the lectures are given in English.

The better to prepare the students of this class for their future career, it has been deemed advisable to diversify the regular discussions in Latin by the introduction of English dissertations on the various topics of Philosophy.

Students, who desire a fuller course, may, in a second year, apply themselves to the study of Natural Right, which, besides a more enlarged course of Ethics, will embrace the fundamental principles of Civil, Political and International Law, with a critical history of Philosophy. The study of Natural Philosophy will be continued.

LECTURES.

The students of the senior classes have the advantage of attending the lectures of the Smithsonian Institution, accompanied by one of their Professors. They may also enjoy on days of recreation, the privilege of hearing the debates in Congress or the pleadings of the Supreme Court, whenever the subjects under discussion may be interesting and instructive to youth.

The study of the French Language is an essential part of the collegiate course. There are six Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to proficiency, and instructed four hours every week. In the higher classes the students will be expected to converse in French.

The Italian, German and Spanish Languages will be taught, if required; but together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, will form additional charges.

When a scholar presents himself for admission into the College, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior attainments may have fitted him. He then passes on regularly through the Classical, French, and Mathematical course, and thence to the end of Moral and Natural Philosophy.

The candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts must undergo a rigorous examination in Moral and Natural Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry, and must be well acquainted with the following branches, to wit: Latin, Greek, French and Mathematics. If he remain longer in College, and pursue the higher branches of Moral and Natural Philosophy, or if he graduate in any learned profession, after completing the above course of collegiate studies, he may receive the degree of Master of Arts.

There are two examinations in the year, the minor in February or March, the principal immediately before the Commencement, about the middle of July. At any time during the year, and particularly at the minor examination, if any one be found capable of passing to a higher class, he will be promoted, and such promotion will be equivalent to the honors of his former class.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character. It will be required of each one who may be admitted, to pursue the studies above mentioned; as experience has proved exemptions in this regard to have been a source of great inconvenience.

Any one coming from a different Institution will be required to produce a satisfactory recommendation from the Principal of such Institution.

The use of tobacco is prohibited to the students, and no one will be received who is unwilling to abide by the prohibition.

Besides the Literary Societies in the College, there are two Military Companies, the officers of which are elected from among the students, and are under the immediate direction of a graduate of West Point. They are exercised every week, and have a full dress parade once a month. Their drill is Light Infantry, and their arms and accoutrements are furnished by the Government.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic; but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is required that they assist with propriety at the public duties of religion with their companions.

No student will be permitted to leave the College, on visits of any length, except in times of vacation. If his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener, and he must then always return to College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person, except his parents or legal guardians.

All letters to students, not known to be from parents, will be opened by an officer of the College.

EXPENSES.

The pension for the scholastic year for Tuition, Board, Lodging, Washing, and Mending of Linen, is	$200 00
$100 invariably in advance.
Medical Aid and Medicines	5 00
For Half-Boarders	125 00
For Day-Scholars	50 00
Use of Philosophical and Astronomical Instruments	5 00
Graduation Fees	5 00
For those students who may spend the Vacations at the College, an extra charge will be made, of	20 00

All accounts must be paid half-yearly in advance. Students may enter at any time during the session. Should a student leave before the expiration of a quarter, no deduction will be made, except in cases of sickness or dismission.

Whatever books may be required for the different classes may be procured by the parents or guardians themselves, or will be supplied by the College, at the most moderate charges. All books, of whatever kind, must be submitted to the supervision of the Prefect of Schools, without whose permission none will be allowed circulation in the College.

Every student must be provided with the uniform, namely: black frock coat or jacket; white pantaloons and vest in summer; blue pantaloons and black vest in winter. All must be provided with two suits for daily wear, (for which no particular color is prescribed,) six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak or great coat. Each student must also be provided with a silver spoon and fork, which, if not brought, will be furnished by the College, and included in the bill. If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required equivalent to the probable expense of clothing for six months. The word "Clothes" is understood to embrace hats, caps, shoes, &c. In future, these articles will not be furnished by the College unless a Deposit for this purpose be placed in the hands of the Treasurer, who will give a detailed account of its outlay in his regular semi-annual Statement.

No bill for clothing or other articles purchased by any student will be acknowledged, unless authorized by the parents or by the Directors of the College.

With regard to pocket-money, it is desired that little should be given. Whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow to their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he may judge the occasion to require. No advance will be made beyond the deposit.

N. B. It is required that each student from a distance should have a guardian in the vicinity, who will make regular payments to the College, and receive him in case of dismission.

Regular accounts of Board, Tuition, &c., will be sent half-yearly in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittance be made to the full amount.

The College possesses a SELECT LIBRARY of twenty-four thousand volumes, amongst which there are many very curious and rare works.* There is a good Philosophical Apparatus, for the use of the advanced students.

The MUSEUM contains an elegant and well arranged cabinet of Minerals; and many Geological Specimens, besides an extensive collection of Shells.

Attached to the College, at the distance of about 400 yards, is an Astronomical OBSERVATORY, sixty feet long and thirty feet wide, divided from east to west into three rooms. The eastern room contains a first-class Meridian-Circle, by Troughton & Simms, of London. The divided arc of the circle has a diameter of 45 inches, reading by microscopes to fractions of a second of arc. The Telescope has a 4-inch glass. A fine sidereal clock, by Molyneux, of London, accompanies this instrument. In the western room is mounted a fine Transit-Instrument, by Ertel & Son, of Munich. It is seven feet long, and has a $4\frac{1}{2}$-inch object-glass. There is in the same room a sidereal clock. The middle part of the Observatory is three stories high, and covered with a rotary dome. The dome room contains a well mounted Equatorial Telescope, made by Troughton & Simms. This instrument has a $4\frac{8}{10}$-inch object-glass, giving powers from twenty-five to four hundred. Besides the above, there are five portable Astronomical Instruments, and a Library of five hundred choice works on Astronomy, Mathematics, and the Physical Sciences.

---

* In the Library there are one hundred volumes printed between the years 1460 and 1520. There are three manuscripts written before the year 1400, and one written in 1620.

REUBEN CLEARY, M. D.,
Prosector of Anatomy.

The Session will commence on the 22d of October, and end in March following.

The Lectures will be delivered at the College buildings, No. 303 F street, during the hours of the afternoon and evening. This time of lecturing has been customary in the College since its establishment, and is found to be advantageous for the student.

The object of the Medical Faculty is to instruct the student perfectly in the elements of Medical Science, in all its departments, with its accessory branches of knowledge, not only to qualify him to enter upon the practice of Medicine, but to give him an extensive foundation upon which he may, in after life, build up a thorough and liberal knowledge of his profession.

The extensive public libraries of the city of Washington afford to the student opportunities which can be found in few cities of the Union for consulting, without cost, rare and valuable works of science.

The Faculty deem it their duty to call the attention of students and preceptors to the fact, that a neglect of the advantage of office tuition is one of the great defects of medical education at the present day. It has always been the opinion of the medical profession in this country and elsewhere, that in the office of an intelligent practitioner, means of instruction exist, for which no other system offers a substitute.

To extend these advantages, the Faculty subject the students to regular examinations, during the course, in their several branches. Private clinics also form a part of the system of education. These have been found from experience to ensure so much more information to each student than public ones, that the Faculty have determined to spare no effort to enlarge their resources, so as to bring each student into familiar contact with the subjects of disease.

REQUISITES FOR GRADUATION, FEES, &c.

The candidate for the degree of Doctor of Medicine must be twenty-one years of age, of good moral character, have applied himself for three years to the study of Medicine, and have attended two full courses of Lectures, the last one of which shall have been at this Institution; also one course of Practical Anatomy.

At the time of application he must pay to the Treasurer of the Faculty the diploma fee, also present through the Dean a thesis on some medical subject, and shall undergo a satisfactory examination. Should the candidate not pass, the fee and essay will be returned.

The fee for the full course is	$90 00
Matriculation (paid only once)	5 00
Demonstrator's ticket	10 00
Graduation	25 00

The expenses of living in Washington are as moderate as in any other city in the Union.
